

We Help You Win Litigation
and Arbitration: valuation, expert examination
and full-service support

We Perform as Teammates Together with Your Lawyers

In this we are guided by the three principles:

- › understanding the strategy;
- › all-around events;
- › switchover.

1 Understanding the Strategy

- Lawyers usually interact with experts in a single-point way: they generate questions, search for experts who are ready to answer them, and unwittingly deprive themselves of support.
- Sometimes the answer cannot serve a significant argument in the litigation as the question was not asked about the right thing or the question itself was not correct. Often, it's better not to bring the case to the commissioning a forensic examination, which is hard and too lengthy to challenge. When an expert is not kept up to date, he does not see how to help you in the best way.

How Else Can You Get an Expert Into the Act?

We Prefer Another Approach

- We understand the core of the case together with the lawyer: we analyze the strategy, study the actions of opponents. As a result, we find maximum ways to strengthen your position and weaken the position of your opponents at each stage.

We call this litigation and arbitration full-service support.

- › SROs of appraisers
- › Higher educational institutions

2 All-Around Events

- It often happens that one case requires several types of expert examinations. So, bankruptcy cases may require financial and economic, accounting, and sometimes handwriting expert examinations as well as the valuation of several types of property of a legal entity. And this is discovered gradually during the analysis of the case files. Oh, what a pleasure! Look for experts in each field and explain to every of them all what you need to find out.
- You do not need to assign a task for each of many experts when all the necessary types of examinations and valuation are carried out by one expert organization!

3 Switchover

- To effectively challenge the forensic report, it is worth collecting independent opinions from various expert organizations. It is advisable to get an expert's statement review from one expert organization, and assign a forensic expert interview to another.
- To gather convincing arguments for the court we involve all the necessary parts.
